

Spiritual Evolution

About eight years ago I've written an article called "The evolution beyond Darwin", about the spiritual evolution of the human kind as seen by me at the time. For me the steps and structures of this process in humans were beginning to become more and more clear to me, but I couldn't possibly have imagined it to be so much greater than I figured it would be.

The further a person gets on the ladder of evolution, the more it will start to realize that it is no longer necessarily only about physical evolution, but also about the spiritual evolution of the human kind. The human being as well as other beings on earth are evolving to a higher state of consciousness which can't be perceived by the three dimensional earthly eyes, but with the inner eye. Not everyone will go evenly in the flow of change and some rather stay on the three dimensional plane, but slowly but surely the signs of a newer, truthful way of being will become visible. Whether everyone will use this evolution solely for good remains to be seen, but that is of a different matter. The purpose of this evolution is to bring people away from their ego-self or "lower"-self and closer to their divine self until it has merged into one with the Source of good and light. That's why it's not important how someone interprets God or whether he has a clear view on whether he does or doesn't believe in God at all. If you want to free yourself from earthly illusion you will no matter what end up at the Source-God. Unfortunately there are many misconceptions created by some world views regarding the way to reach God. There is no one right or exclusive way. Everyone must have total freedom to find the road that suits them best and feels just right and go on this road with respect and understanding for their fellow beings.

Even amongst people who are very earth based in their views and consciousness more people are starting to feel that the way things are going in this world is no longer in sync with who they really want or feel to be. People feel trapped and no longer fitting their current life settings. I'm not saying this is a new phenomenon, but it is in the way it is happening now and the scale in which it is happening. There are a number of theories about why it is now that this great spiritual shift is occurring, but I will not focus on these. I just want to write as much as possible from my own experiences, observations and insights. All this is happening in a plane not visible in the earthly dimensional plane. It's very noticeable that another era has started for mankind and this makes living in these times a special experience.
